Legal 'Bible' provide testament to Colemans-ctts expertise

Legal 500, described by some as the "Legal Bible", has recognised colemans-ctts LLP for the quality of service and expertise provided by its solicitors in Manchester, Kingston and Walsall across all its main practice areas. In the soon to be published 2009/10 edition, the firm was recognised in the work of:

- Clinical Negligence: Claimant team in Kingston;
- Commercial Property department in Manchester;
- Debt Recovery department in Kingston;
- Personal Injury: Claimant work in across all our offices in Manchester, Kingston and Walsall;
- Personal Injury: Defendant service in Manchester;
- And the Property Litigation team in Kingston.

The directory, which ranks law firms by location and practice area, is seen as the litmus test for the standard of service and level of expertise a firm provides its clients.

This year's directory when summing up the firm, stated: "The practice is highly rated by peers... (and) is noted as attentive to detail." The 2009 edition also specifically highlighted the work and expertise of Partners Roger Coleman, Tony Sutton and Andrew Marsden.

The number of inclusions in this year's Legal 500 is another example of colemans-ctts cementing its reputation as a law firm to watch; both on a regional and national level, and follows its induction into QualitySolicitors.com group last month.

The firm's Kingston and Walsall branches were also recognised in the 2009 Legal 500 for their expertise across a range of legal services.

Managing Partner of colemans-ctts, Janet Tilley, was satisfied with this years results but has greater ambitions for the firm.

"We can't help but be pleased," she said, "To be ranked in most of our main practice areas is testament to the work the departments have put in. We are always looking at new ways of improving our service and it is fantastic that this hard work is reflected in the level of satisfaction amongst our clients."
